Dear Hiring Team,

I'm a freelance full stack developer with more than 8 years of experience building marketing websites and web products for B2B technology companies. I'm writing to offer my help as a developer on your website projects, either for overflow work or for specific launches.

Most of my career has been spent inside agency teams. I take finished designs and turn them into fast, accessible and SEO-ready websites, and I care about the details that make a site feel like the brand: typography, spacing, motion and how it behaves on every screen size. I'm comfortable picking up an existing codebase, working from Figma, sharing progress on a staging link and hitting a launch date.

What I can take on:

- Next.js and React websites and web apps, in JavaScript or TypeScript
- Custom WordPress themes, Gutenberg blocks and ACF setups that clients can edit safely
- Headless WordPress with a Next.js front end
- HubSpot and Marketo forms, analytics and third-party integrations
- Page speed, Core Web Vitals and technical SEO fixes on existing sites

I've worked on websites for software, security and industrial companies in the US, and I also build and run three software products of my own (clinic, rental and café management), so I'm used to owning a project from the database to the final pixel.

I work remotely from India with a good overlap with UK and European hours, and I'm happy to work under your brand so your clients only ever deal with your agency. If it helps, I'm glad to start with a small paid task so you can judge the quality of my work before anything bigger.

My portfolio is attached, and you can see how I work with agencies at themanishchauhan.in/agencies. Thank you for your time. I'd be happy to talk whenever suits you.

Kind regards,

Manish Chauhan
